

WATER BASED COATING

As the regulations on chemicals used in the foundries are getting stricter more are converting into water based coating of moulds and cores. With this transition many practical implications needs to be solved for a successful result.

We possess the knowledge & experience to guide your foundry into obtaining the desired results and to be a complete partner for the implementation of water based coatings into the production.

With this project we highlight the main practical considerations and how they can be overcome. As a result we are also capable of designing and delivering a customized solution for a water based coating system.
